1 The DCOTA Design House opens on the third floor of the "A" building into the Grand Entrance Foyer designed by Jack Phillips.

2 Wade Hallock, of Hallock Design Group, combined various decades of style, from 1970 to the 18th century, in the Relaxation Lounge.

3 Alfredo Brito, of Brito Interiors, fashioned The Study with a monochromatic palette that serves as a neutral canvas for pops of red.

4 A table vignette forms an art-gallery feel in the Formal Living Room, designed by Allison Paladino of Allison Paladino Interior Design.

5 Inspired by South Florida resorts, Alex Matamoros, of DCOTA Design Services, kept the Reception Lobby neutral yet sophisticated.

6 Timothy DuPont, of blue, a design company, inc., injected the Kitchen with a jolt of lilac and durable finishes, such as laminate countertops.

7 Texture, color, patterns and eclectic accents reign in the Powder Room, created by Aldo Puschendorf of Puschendorf Interiors.

8 Cecil Hayes, of Cecil's Designers Unlimited, Inc., placed the Master Suite's sculptured-wood headboard against a glass wall covering.

9 A dynamic wall mural greets guests in the Dining Room, designed by Osirys Mendez and Sabrina Vela of Mendez International & Assoc.

Debuting 14 renowned designers, 100 showrooms and over 1,000 cutting-edge ideas, the inaugural DCOTA Design House at the Design Center of the Americas in Dania Beach, Fla., is on view from Jan. 13-June 11, 2010. With 9,000 square feet of space, this show house will model 14 rooms and highlight some of the newest and top premier products available in the marketplace today, as envisioned by some of the industry's most creative minds. 10 Joseph Fava and Amanda Dillon, of Fava Design Group, created a masculine look for the Cigar Room with dark and dramatic finishes.

11 High fashion and bold photography fill the Mademoiselle Room, designed by Brett Sugerman and Giselle Looor of b+g design, inc.

12 Sophistication abounds in the Guest Bedroom, styled by Kim Collins and Sherron DuPont of Collins + DuPont Interior Design.

13 Jack Phillips, of Jack Phillips Design, Inc., incorporated pastel hues and striped fabrics into the Grand Entrance and Foyer.

14 1970s New York inspired A. Keith Powell, of A. Keith Powell Interior, to design the Formal Sitting Room in comfortable glamour.

15 Alfred Karram Jr., of AKJ Design Concepts LLC, created an elegant "Winterscape in Florida" look for the Family Room.
